

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.

Difference Between Alaskan and Siberian Husky

1. Both the dogs have similar looks, however, there are many differences among them. The main difference between an Alaskan Husky and a Siberian Husky is, the Alaskan Husky is solely made for working purposes whereas Siberian Husky is also a show dog apart from being a sled dog.
2. The countries of origin also differ, the Alaskan is of American Origin while Siberian is of Russian Origin. The difference in their sizes also differ, the Alaskan counterpart is leaner than the Siberian Husky.
3. Alaskan and Siberian Huskies are used for dog sled racing too, however, Alaskan is used for long-distance racing while the Siberian is for short-distance racing.
4. Alaskan Husky is not a pure breed, it is not registered with any kennel club while Siberian Husky is well recognized and pure breed of dogs.
5. Alaskan Husky is shorter than the Siberian Husky.

Source and more details: <https://askanydifference.com/difference-between-alaskan-and-siberian-husky/>

AskAnyDifference.com

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.