

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.

Difference Between Basilica and Cathedral

1. The title of basilica must be bestowed upon a church by a pope, whereas a cathedral is where the bishop of a diocese is located and looks after his subjects.
2. In general, basilicas are long and rectangular shaped, with a raised area and high ceiling at the opposite end to the door, whereas cathedrals tend to be very large buildings with a lot of open space.
3. Court proceedings and other public and official functions are held in basilicas, and cathedrals are places for prayer, music, higher learning, and civic leadership.
4. There is no limit on the number of basilicas in a given region, and some cities have up to fifteen. Cathedrals are limited to one, or sometimes two, in any given diocese.
5. Today, across the globe there are approximately 1,800 Christian basilicas and 3,400 cathedrals still standing.

Source and more details: <https://askanydifference.com/difference-between-basilica-and-cathedral/>

AskAnyDifference.com

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.