

AskAnyDifference.com

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.

Difference Between Complaint and FIR

1. A complaint is a piece of information given orally or in writing to a Magistrate about an offence committed by a person.
2. An FIR or First Information Report is the information given to a police officer in charge of a station regarding an offence being committed and it must be reduced into writing.
3. Complaints can be filed for both cognizable and non-cognizable offences.
4. Only cognizable offences can be reported through an FIR.
5. Upon receipt of a complaint, the Magistrate can inquire into the matter himself or direct a police officer to do so.
6. After filing an FIR the police officer may commence the investigation without any prior permission from a Magistrate.

Source and more details: <https://askanydifference.com/difference-between-complaint-and-fir/>

AskAnyDifference.com

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.