

AskAnyDifference.com

We help you with differences and comparisons of terms, products, and services.

Difference Between “So” and “Such”

1. “So” is used to describe something of high extreme on the other hand “Such” is used as a determiner to put importance on the matter core to the sentence.
2. “So” takes place in a sentence as an adverb whereas “Such” works as a pronoun.
3. To put more emphasis on the adjective used in the sentence “So” is used. And “Such” can be used to express the subject matter to a specific degree.
4. To point out the similarity, highly extreme level of the adjective, to describe something, referring to the aforementioned words “so” is used. Whereas “Such” is used to emphasize something, an action that leads to the happening of an event or after something already appeared in the sentence.

Source and more details: <https://askanydifference.com/difference-between-so-and-such/>